FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

AROUND THE WORLD, June 6th, 2020 — Internationally, communities are coming together for the third 5G Global Protest Day to peacefully protest the implementation of 5G wireless technology on Earth and in Space.

The event is initiated by Stop 5G International, an aligned group of advocates who join many other groups from around the world calling for a stop to 5G, and for the use of safer technology such as fiber or cable for most internet and telecommunications needs.

5G, the next generation of wireless technology, seeks to connect every "thing" and "event" on earth as part of the internet of things, smart cities and smart regions. To do so, the wireless industry plans to install cell tower antennas in front of every third to fifth home to work together with tens of thousands of satellites orbiting the Earth, and millions of Earth Base Stations. All this infrastructure will vastly increase public exposure to wireless radiation. Protesters believe that the public should have the right to choose the infrastructure best suited for their community as 5G and an all-things-connected world would profoundly impact health and quality of life.

It has been brought to the attention of Stop 5G International that NATE, The Communications Infrastructure Contractors Association, and some media outlets have put out statements warning of possible vandalism or even threats to cell tower workers on the 5G Global Protest Day.

In response, Stop5G International has put out the following statement:

"We do not condone the use of vandalism or violence. Our mission is to raise awareness about the effects of 5G and radiofrequency microwave radiation (wireless radiation) through evidence-based information and non-violent actions. Our protests have always been peaceful in keeping with the vision of Stop 5G International.

It is our hope that this day of peaceful actions will bring greater public awareness about the harms of 5G and start a dialogue about wiser technology options for a safer and more life-affirming future.

Due to current events impacting protests worldwide, we forewarn the public not to fall prey to potentially staged False Flag Events – negative actions done by one group under the guise of another for the purpose of discrediting the targeted group.

Of relevance as well, recently there have been many news stories about cell tower vandalism such as fires, suggesting the involvement of 5G activists. Yet many of these incidents are now being investigated to determine whether they were instead the result of electrical fires or needed infrastructure repairs.

To help ensure Stop5G protests remain peaceful, Stop 5G International encourages protesters to document any incidents of vandalism to cell tower facilities. At the same time, we ask industry to produce a single study showing 5G is safe.”

NB: We encourage all groups to observe social distancing during the day’s events.
